

HEATH LEDGER PRESENTS: 10 THINGS I HATE ABOUT FALL SEMESTER '08

By Mr. Mahmud '11

10. Male Orgasm jokes.

Oh I see how that's clever, it's because the Womyn's Center held a well attended show called the "Female Orgasm." Oh, you guys are clever, gosh oh golly.

9. Women who undermine feminism.

I don't even mind the crazy ones, they tend to amuse me, but the lack of self-respect or false front truly pisses me off. Don't bash feminism without even knowing what it is.

8. Devil's advocates.

The lack of self-confidence and originality depresses me. And I hope David Lynch will remember, a southern man don't need him around anyhow. Mulholland Dr. Best movie ever. Watch it you'll know what I mean.

7. People telling me to not philosophize.

What does that even mean? Don't think?

6. IM Soccer teams not showing up to play.

Send a fucking e-mail! How hard is it?! You can take a break from the 90 minutes you are spending jerking off in your Kirkland double to be courteous enough to inform the other team.

5. Capitalist Bastard vs. Communist Crony arguments.

Guys come on, lets move onward and beyond. Let's be original and enter the pseudo-intellectual wave of anarchism.

4. IMF funding getting butt-raped by SA.

Thanks for taking away a dozen concerts and something interesting to do on weekends. I do understand the need to show them who is boss though. How else can you say you're doing your job unless you make students miserable?

3. Freshmen.

Nah, I'm kidding, I love you guys.

2. "Rudeness" masqueraded as "Honesty."

Yes there is a difference, one is truly appreciated, and the other is trying to thrust the anger of a meaningless, pathetic, talentless life onto others.

1. Campus Po's Streaking Team crackdown.

Theft, drugs, drinking, suicide, loneliness, depression, rape, near-murder, but you're right – a bunch of kids running naked for 10 minutes is the most pressing issue at Hamilton.

REJECTED BY RED WEATHER: "MY HUNGARY EYES"

By Miles Hugel '10

oh hair of mine
dyed black with angst
unwashed locks represent my pain
like a raven ravaging my soul

you cripple me so much sobs shaking my bleeding chest
this sapping suffering keeps me
from getting a haircut

oh mother, don't tell me what to do my hair, my pain, my life
i do as i feel

YOU DON'T UNDERSTAND ME
AND YOU NEVER WILL
I WON'T GET A HAIRCUT
FALLING INTO MY ABYSS OF SADNESS

my hair is my pain
my hair is my feelings
my hair is my life

my life is meaningless
my hair is meaningless
i need a haircut
[cut cut]

AFTERNOON DELIGHT CAUSES TOWNIES TO ATTACK HAMILTON "Publication" deemed crime against humanity

By Ms. Stagner '09

MEDIA BOARD DEPT.

(CLINTON, NY) A strong gust of wind recently introduced Clinton residents to Hamilton's newest one-page publication, resulting in disastrous consequences for the already fragile town-gown relations.

"What the hell is it supposed to be?" Dan Kimball asked. "It's certainly not delightful in any way. Is the title ironic?"

"That angry boy's face in the corner scares me," Edna Duvall GP '11 commented. "I called up my grandson immediately and told him that if he ever created an abomination like that he would be out of my will. Good thing he doesn't know I wrote him out once he started writing for The Daily Bull."

Townies pledged to teach students a lesson.

"My friends and I stole GPS systems from students' cars in hope they'd get lost over break," Bill McNeilly confessed. "That plan backfired after 78% of them got stranded at the village center. Luckily, we were able to withhold food from them, hopefully creating a Donnor party-like situation."

Townies promise further retribution if Afternoon Delight continues publishing, such as storming the Hill with torches and pitchforks, and impounding all Keystone within a 40 mile radius.

Students had mixed reactions.

"I think it's great that everyone on campus is given the opportunity to publish whatever they want!" Laura Beckworth '12 cheered. "Afternoon See "Can't blame 'em," pg. 3

MAJOR SEWAGE LEAK RESULTS IN ANNEX SLEEP-OVER PARTY Like elementary school, but with more boning

By Mr. Weisenthal '12 and Mr. Leubsdorf '10

HURRICANE SHITRINA DEPT.

(HAMILTON COLLEGE) After a mysterious sewage leak flooded Major with used condoms and freshmen vomit, dorm residents threw the first Annex slumber party, complete with pajamas, pillow fights, and the absence of a shit-filled hallway.

"I've been an RA for three years, so I thought I've seen it all," Major RA Sandy Arias '09 explained. "Especially after last semester when I accidentally walked in on PBX pledging. But this was far worse than that... well, actually it was just as bad."

"When I woke up with the smell of feces everywhere, I couldn't believe it was happening," Sam Kone '12 said. "I thought I was just having another sex dream involving the Death Star trash compacter scene from the first Star Wars."

Physical Plant was unable to make it to the scene due to rumors of robbery, terrorist attacks, and the fact that it was really kind of late at night.

Major refugees were surprisingly content.

"We didn't need alcohol!" Vinny Creso '09 chortled. "A little bit of Fuchsine and some Gentian Violet with a drop of pine oil and you're out for a week! I can't even remember Thanksgiving Break!"

Mary Demestos '11 laughed, "I didn't wanted to be in the Annex without any fratboys to grind on, but it ended up being a really fun night! Mr. Muscle and Mrs. Clean got Easy Off, if you know what I mean!"

She added, "And I mean vaginal penetration." See "Physical Plant's idea of a joke," pg. 3

STUDENT ASSEMBLY SPENDS SURPLUS ON CAMPUS DEFENSE SYSTEM

$20 million project also to construct elaborate spy system to monitor washers, dryers

By Mr. Haluza '11

WHY NOT SOME DECENT FOOD? DEPT.

(HAMILTON COLLEGE) In a recent all-campus email, Student Assembly announced their plans for the surplus: "We have decided that the best use of this ridiculous amount of cash is to construct a moat to protect the school, as well as buying some badass weapons to point at Colgate."

Student Assembly members quickly purchased several first Gulf War-era Scud missiles from the Utica black market. Any doubts about the weaponry's effectiveness were put to rest when the SA successfully bombed Clinton Central School to a pile of rubble, reducing the village's limited gene pool even further.

Many have criticized this decision, calling it "pointless" and "a waste of money."

Tom Anderson '11 complained, "We just got that crazy waterfall and a glass elevator in KJ, now we want to build our own little police state? I thought we were finally making some progress with the end of the football season."

However, Johnny Utah '09 offered support for the defense system. "My friend Trent back home always mocks me for double majoring in philosophy and dance. We'll see who's laughing when I launch an airstrike on his grandma's nursing home!"

SA representatives stood by the decision.

"The HamDef system will have many uses for the community," Representative Ted Logan '10 stated. "With our borders clearly defined by the moat, we'll be able to stop any moonshinecrazed townies from entering, thus reducing non-AD-related rapes by at least 10%!"

In light of these words, several students are beginning to see the plus side.

Jack Traven '10 added. "Now, we can start to crack down on all the idiotic shit that occurs on campus. I have a vision of a better future, one where Jeb & Co. are dragged across the streets of Clinton, tied to our proud fleet of turret-mounted jitneys."

A GORGED OUTSIDE-THE-BUBBLE NEWS

USA! USA! USA!

Hollywood, California

The success of teen vampire-angst film Twilight is leading studios to invest in other supernatural films, such as were-wolf-based Judd Apatow comedies and zombie porn.

Sacramento, California

Governor Schwarzenegger declared a fiscal emergency in California, pledging to try to close the state's budget deficit by standing on street corners and flexing his muscles in exchange for pennies.

Minneapolis, Minnesota

Al Franken claimed the lead in the recount in the Minnesota Senate race, giving hope to other celebrities running for office, such as Val Kilmer and Jabba the Hutt.

New York, New York

A-Rod abandoned his children to spend Thanksgiving with Madonna, when she discovered what Yankees fans have known for years: his inability to perform under pressure.

Washington, DC

Barack Obama selected Hillary Clinton as Secretary of State, Bill Ayers as Education Secretary, and Martha Stewart as Secretary for Interior Decorating.

Long Island, New York

A Wal-Mart employee was trampled by customers on Black Friday, in honor of the birth of Jesus.

A few students decided to tough it out in Major. "I don't fear foul odors," Rick Li '11 announced. "Showering was kind of disgusting, though. I've been dousing myself in Morris Powder since, but people still kind of avoid me. But that might have something to do with the fact that I write for Afternoon Delight."

DUEL ENDORSES MALIFICENT FOR SA PRESIDENT

London, Britain

Prime Minister Gordon Brown is definitely going bald

Dushanbe, Tajikistan

Tajikistan hooked up with Poland when they were a new country. They should just get over themselves and admit it. Poland has hooked up with every closet case in the world.

Addis Abba, Ethiopia

Prime Minister Meles Zenawi will act nice to get in bed with you, but really just fucking sucks.

Berlin, Germany

Chancellor Andrea Merkel is a nasty slut. In her underwear, she looks like she's straight out of Dove's Campaign for "Real" Beauty, a real "lights off" reputation. It's awesome watching her at last call at the UN, frantically searching for dick for the night.

Moscow, Russia

Vladimir Putin is the biggest asshole ever. He thinks he's hot shit when he's 5 feet tall and is ugly... and getting fat.

Cape Town, South Africa

The African Union is probably the best organizations in the world, cute guys who are fun and real. I would take that any day over small cocks, steroids, and gay-sex loving Gay-apean Union.

Delight and The Spectator really show students that 'special' and 'differently-abled' people are still capable of putting together a publication."

"We are the whitest campus ever," Ben Unangst '10 observed. "How did we ever get a publication with writers with names like A-Dog? Is this fo'sizzle?"

Despite townies and students' wishes, the Administration currently refuses to ban Afternoon Delight until the publication responds to Dean of Students Nancy Thompson's submission to the advice column.
