

MICHAEL PHELPS TO STAR IN HIS OWN LIFETIME MOVIE

Pot-Smoking, 23-year-old deemed excellent role model

By Mr. Mahmud '11

QUALITY TELEVISION DEPT.

(HOLLYWOOD) Journalists and Sportscasters alike have been flocking around the set of the upcoming LifeTime movie Michael Phelps: The Highs and Lows.

Students expressed excitement over the movie.

"I'm happy they are deciding to include the pot-smoking in the movie," Ameylia Lockhart '10 cheered gleefully. "I mean, let's be serious; Olympic Gold Medals aside, what does he have going for him? All he has to do is run for president and he can be the next coming of Reagan."

Some students reacted badly to the film.

"To idealize immoral and wicked people is evil," Christian-Fellowship member Eric Tuttle '12 declared. "Pot-smoking is against God. This film encourages the youth of today to follow Phelps down to the fiery circles of Hell. Besides, if everyone smoked pot, people would just be lazing around minding their own business, and then there'd be no one to exorcize!"

Michael Phelps admits to being excited about the upcoming movie.

"I feel that this is a wonderful opportunity for me to get back into the hearts of the American people," Phelps stated. "Plus, now I am totally a bad boy!!! Chicks love the bad boy!"

His swimming competitors were jealous of his success both in the pool and at the bong.

"First he gets publicity for succeeding, and now he gets twice as much for failing," French Olympic swimmer Marie Deveroux complained in her outrageous accent while twisting her ridiculous moustache. "We fail all the time—nobody loves us for it."

OUTSIDE-THE-BUBBLE NEWS

UNITED STATES

Washington, D.C.

In his first official press conference, President Obama fielded questions about the economy, foreign policy, and A-Rod's steroid habits. Apparently Osama Bin Laden is going to break the American spirit by shrinking genitalia one professional sports player at a time.

New York, NY

Authorities recently disclosed that Bernard Madoff's wife snuck out $15.5 million before her husband's untimely arrest. She was last seen in Aruba sucking down margaritas with her new fiancée, Karl Rove.

Los Angeles, California

Jessica Simpson has recently gained weight and the heavily debated topic has been scattered across both legitimate and sketchy news forums. Simpson claims contentment with her curvier figure and tells reporters that all of her concerts will now be sponsored by Hershey. It's just more to love, Jess. Hugs and kisses.

THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD

London, England

The Bank of London now recognizes that the United Kingdom is entering a deep recession and that further rate cuts will no longer prove helpful. Apparently the setting of America's Federal Funds rate to zero wasn't any sort of clue. God and Queen forbid we pay attention to the stupid Americans.

Berlin, Germany

A 16-year-old boy recently drank 45 shots of tequila thanks to the encouragement of two other men, aged 18 and 21. The boy died after a four week coma and the two men were sentenced to "compulsory social training." The course will teach them that forcing minors to drink himself to death is, in fact, not a good way to pick up chicks. Surprise.

LOCAL MAN FORGETS VALENTINE'S DAY

Never Quite the Same Afterwards

By Ms. Stagner '09

HALLMARK CORPORATION DEPT.

(HAMILTON COLLEGE) Local man Steve Wickham '10 forgot Valentine's Day this year, much to the anger and frustration of his two-year girlfriend, Tara Loomis '10.

"Mine was a silent protest against the commercialization of a holiday that has desecrated and romanticized the martyrdom of St. Valentine," Wickham stated. "But yeah, I totally did forget."

Wickham later added, "I've never been screwed so hard in my life. And not in the way that I'd hoped either."

Loomis admitted that she had been a bit concerned about the holiday.

"Last year I sent him a Facebook message every day for two weeks as a reminder about Valentine's Day, each with lists of my favorite colors and jewelry, clothes sizes, and web-sites with things that I wanted bookmarked," Loomis said.

"I was really hoping that this year he would remember and not get me something like that God awful collection of Playboy shot glasses from last year. I mean, seriously?!"

Wickham still defends last year's gift as "classy but with a hint of raunch; something very similar to every Hamilton girl," as well as something within the range of every Hamilton guy's pitiful bank account.

Unfortunately for Wickham, Loomis took no excuses for his behavior.

GHOSTFACE KILLAH MURDAHS FOUR AFTAH CONCERT

Publicity skyrockets, Administration thrilled

By Mr. Zappala '12

VANILLA ICE IS NOT OKAY DEPT.

(HAMILTON COLLEGE) Sometime between the hours of one and two Saturday morning, rap artist Ghostface Killah murdered four students who stalked him back to his hotel room after the concert.

"They snuck up into my fuckin' window and tried to make me listen to their white ass attempts at rappin'. So I pulled my piece on those white muthas," Mr. Killah defended. "They shoulda known betta. Who hasn't seen 'Never scare a black man' on YouTube?"

The students managed to follow the artist by bribing one of their Jitney driver friends with half a carton of cigarettes, two crumpled ten-dollar bills, and a broken FebFest button.

"I dropped them off around midnight," Noah Skylar '10 explained. "Chances are that none of this would have happened if I picked them up at one instead of four when I finished smuggling 73 copies of Hannah Montana's new CD into my room."

Some students cried out against the atrocity.

"They had a right to try—their raps were incredibly touching," Lila Ferrier '12 commented. "My favorite is: 'Snow, hoe, gimme a blow. We in the gaz-e-bo, be careful of Campus Po...Bitch-es!'"

Still, many agreed with Mr. Killah's actions.

"The four students played with us on the curling team," Gene Faulks '09 said. "We tried to explain to them that curling is not an actual sport, and that play-See "Where is Eminem, anyway?" pg. 3

OBAMA TO APPEAR IN VANITY FAIR, PLAYBOY NEXT MONTH
PILF jokes already beginning to circulate
 By Ms. Mintzer '09

OBAMA'S CENTERFOLD DEBUT DEPT. (DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA) Less than a month into his presidency, Barack Obama's media visibility and cult of personality have soared to new heights, as he has recently agreed to grace the pages of the socially conscious Vanity Fair and the less socially conscious, but infinitely easier to masturbate to, Playboy.

"It is an exciting and challenging time to be President," Obama observed. "I admit I owe a lot to the young voters who worked hard to get my message out there, and here is their reward."

At Hamilton, the College Democrats are excited to get copies of the magazine.

"Gosh, I can't wait to open up my new Playboy and see Obama's stimulus package...I think it'll work for me," said Miranda Robertson '11, Vice President of the Hamilton Democrats.

"I think it's so progressive that Obama wants to pose nude. Didn't you see him on vacation in Hawaii? I would kill for those pecs!" said Page L. William '10.

The Playboy spread will feature an interview with Mr. Obama and a poolside photo shoot with the President in various stages of undress.

Hillary Clinton and Michelle Obama were asked to pose as well, but declined the offer declaring that it would be bad for the country's image.

Hillary Clinton added, "If I haven't allowed Bill to see me naked, let alone in a bathing suit, in 15 years, do you think I would let America see me?"

Students protested against this refusal.

"Agh, that's bullshit..." said Mark McGarity '09. "I think Michelle is a total MILF, and Hillary, well, she's ok I guess."

Even some of the Hamilton Republicans seem to be psyched about the new Obama photos.

"This is really good," said one College Republican who wished to remain anonymous. "I used to jerk off in secret to The Audacity of Hope, but now if my roommate ever catches me I'll look much more legitimate doing it with Playboy. Plus there's way more pictures..."

"It's strange," said Astrid Whitebridge '10, whose father is the president of the Fairfield County Republicans. "After watching President Obama on T.V., my mind told me I was Republican, but my body felt a bit more...bipartisan."

URGO PLEDGES PHI ZETA THOMPSON, KXA
 By Ms. Ryder '11

PADDLE DEPT. (HAMILTON COLLEGE) In an attempt to unify with the student body, President and ex-minion Joe Uργο signed his bid to Phi Zeta.

"It was a tough choice," PZ rush chair Jeff Burke '09 remarked. "It ended up being between him and Paul Ryan. However, we decided that although Paul Ryan has great connections for concerts, Uργο has a scooter. And that just wins every time, hands down."

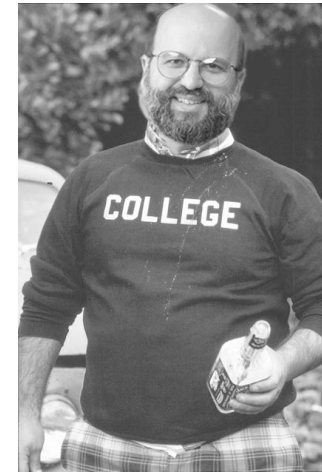

Uργο had checked out some of the other frats before deciding on Phi Zeta.

"He came to a few of our events, but we all knew he wasn't Kappa Tau material," Andrew Weston '10 noted. "Personally, I think we're better off. It'd be more awkward than Clay Aiken at a motorcycle bar."

Uργο was unable to comment, as reports have revealed that he's been locked in a basement since last Thursday after he "donated" his house to Phi Zeta.

"My suspicions of Uργο's involvement with the frat began when a flaming couch sailed out the second floor window," neighbor Mark Thompson observed. "All of this nonsense has become a weird cross between Animal House and Old School. Except that Dean Uργο hasn't run across the campus naked. Yet."

Others have noticed Uργο's suspicious behavior.

HE SLEPT WITH YOUR SISTER. TWICE.

"Personally, I started to get worried when I received his phone call telling me to approve the Beruit room in the new ELS renovation plans," an anonymous secretary reported. "Then again, I probably should have also been concerned when I saw him dressed like Dr. Frank N. Furter in the middle of the Dog Pound."

Students remained thrilled with Uργο's decision.

"We have high hopes for Pledge J," Burke said. "We also look forward to many nights of drunk scootering."

"I shot him back down to second base," Loomis admitted. "It was the only punishment that I thought would be fitting enough. Now we'll see if he remembers our anniversary."

Wickham's friends felt his pain.

"It's totally hilarious that it happened to him," Dave Baird '09 laughed. "But a woman's fury over forgetting Valentine's Day is something only to be compared to El Niño and Katrina combined, with a hint of Stalin-like anger. Bros everywhere, beware."

Wickham was unavailable for a final comment as that he was busy watching Pride and Prejudice for the fifth time with Loomis.

ing it only made them smaller, whiter, and more liberal arts oriented, but they wouldn't listen. They kept claiming that they were the next Vanilla Ice and Eminem. Except without the rip-offs from Queen and a massive drug problem."

Some students remained unsurprised by the unfortunate incident.

"I hope this is a message to everyone," Miranda Bard '11 added. "Stick with what you know. So on that note, let's say we just invite people like Michael Bolton and Billy Joel, okay?"
