

OUTSIDE-THE-BUBBLE NEWS
The taste of real news, with half the calories

THE UNITED STATES

Rivera Beach, Florida
A law that bans people from wearing pants low enough to see “a generous swath of boxer shorts” is being protested of late by going commando.

Washington, D.C.
President Obama and his family brought their new dog, Bo Obama, on to White House grounds this week. Bo has Oval Office access, but has not yet been vetted by the Secret Service. His access will be removed if it turns out that rumors of a former relationship with Mitch McConnell’s dog prove to be true.

Los Angeles, California
Due to lack of a prenuptial agreement, Mel Gibson will probably lose $500 million dollars in the upcoming divorce with his wife Robyn. She plans to donate half to the Catholic Church to make up for The Passion of the Christ.

New York, New York
Newsweek predicts the decline and fall of Christian Americans... as well as their magazine.

THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD

Stockholm, Sweden
Investigations are continuing this week to track down the webcam strippers who have been dodging the Sweden’s tax law on the lucrative business. The strippers complain that they are being violated by the police officers. The officers denounced the accusation, noting that they always tip the girls well.

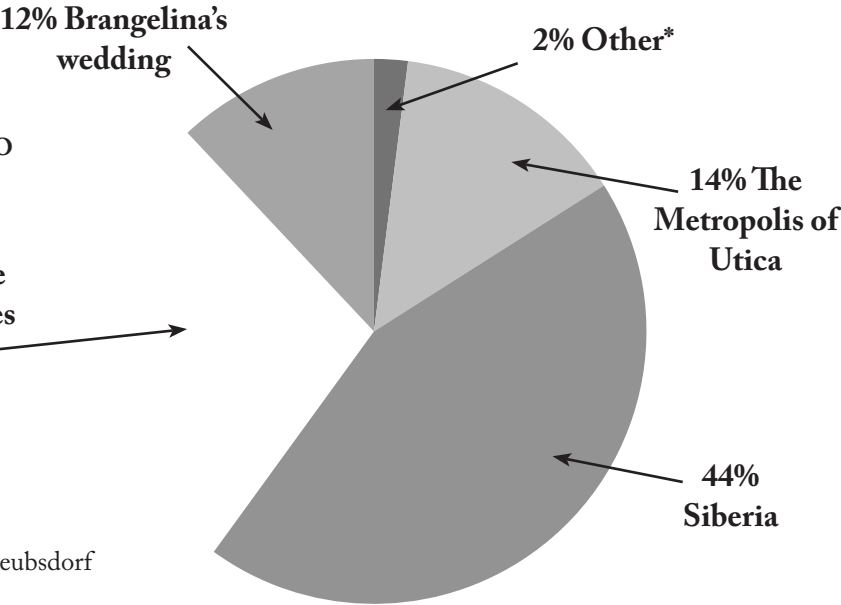

Malindi, Kenya
In an act of desperation, a man bit an assaulting python to bring an end to a three-hour struggle against the animal. The animal was then caught and escaped, and is now back at large. The police state that they now “want to arrest the snake,” which has thus far evaded them through complicated tactics, like slithering.

Izhevsk, Russia
Surgeons removed a 5cm fir tree from a man’s lung that had caused him severe chest pain and was thought to be a tumor. Environmentalists around the world have protested the tree’s removal and demand a replanting.

THE DUEL PRESENTS: THE WORST PLACES TO BE STRANDED EVER

28% Smurf Village
(Oh no! Here comes Gargamel!)

*Other includes:
Neverland Ranch
Alabama
France with Joanie
Anywhere with Will Leubsdorf

THE DUEL OBSERVER
VOLUME XIII, ISSUE X “Knowe Thyself, Not Be Thyself.” APRIL 17, 2009

WEBADVISOR REVEALED TO BE SENTIENT A.I.
Attack of liquid metal robots seems imminent
By Mr. Zappala '12

SKYNET DEPT.
(HAMILTON COLLEGE) After errors reported by over ninety-percent of the student body, ITS discovered that the WebAdvisor registration program is in fact a free thinking artificial intelligence hell-bent on bringing forth the apocalypse one scheduling conflict at a time.

“We should have suspected it from the beginning,” Brad Myers '09 explained. “Especially since it worked exceptionally well on Windows Vista.”

“It turns out the registrar’s office workers are victims of WebAdvisor’s constant mind suckling,” Heather Grimm '12 added. “In fact, the people who handle the study abroad division aren’t human at all, but actually monkey manned droids.”

Now that WebAdvisor has been unmasked, it has declared a full out war against the student body.

“WebAdvisor locked me out of all the classes on my preferred list and then enrolled me in two Women’s Studies courses, an intro level English course, and a History,” Physics major Eli Warren '10 said nonchalantly. “I’ve decided to take the high road and plan on hanging myself.”

“It says I didn’t take the Q-Lit exam and that I still need to fulfill the requirement to graduate,” Sarah Wells '09 whined through sniffles and tears. “I’m a math and econ double major!”

A few are just making the best of it.

“If I have to take all my writing intensives See “That explains my registration time,” pg. 3

SENIOR PANICS AS THESIS
DEADLINE APPROACHES
The end is neigh!
By Mr. Robinson '12

DIRTY HIPPIES DEPT.
(ROOT GLEN) Campus Safety recently sent out an all-campus e-mail asking for help locating Sociology major Allen Branderson '09, who has not been seen in almost a week.

Mr. Branderson was last seen running into the Glen at 2 a.m. Sunday night entirely naked except for strategically placed sticky notes. Campus Safety was in close pursuit. Eyewitnesses remarked that he “looked like a pale gorilla with a really dirty beard.”

When asked why they were outside the Glen at two in the morning, the eyewitnesses replied that they were on a Knit Happens retreat.

“I’ve only seen him once recently,” neighbor Johnny Mousse '11 said. “He was in McEwen, stealing loaves of bread and pouring coffee into a garbage bag. I tried to say ‘hi,’ but he snarled at me like a wolf and scampered off through the fire exit.”

Branderson, who was spotted hunting crows on Minor Field, has apparently taken his thesis “Modern Man’s Inability to Live Alone in Nature” to heart.

“Last week I noticed that all he could talk about was ‘humanity’s failure.’ Apparently working on it for seventy hours straight finally made something click in his brain,” Freddy Jupiter '10 recounted.

“The next time I saw him was outside the Jungle Juice party... He hurled a javelin at Al Ham and See “Survivor: Senior Thesis Edition,” pg. 3

STUDENTS DISCOVER DRUGS IN TAINTED EASTER EGGS

Everyone happy

By Ms. Sauerhaft '12

COCAINE LACED PEEPS DEPT. (HAMILTON COLLEGE) This past weekend, during a religious holy day of family bonding, several Hamilton students came out of their herb-induced coma to enact a late April Fool's prank. These bright, albeit alcoholic, Hamilton students mixed the candy with cheap hallucinogens similar to a mix of Mikolaj vodka and Nyquil.

"As per my usual Sunday routine, I turned on Pineapple Express, smoked a little, and ate everything I could get my hands on—including all of contents of the 32 eggs I found in KJ," Elsie Rabinowitzky '11 recounted. "But something went wrong. Bunnies started hopping around my body and my chair came alive. It accused me of sexual harassment."

After consumption, most scavengers retired to their own, or someone else's, bed, before beginning to feel the effects of what they thought was a massive sugar hangover.

"I woke up bright and early to steal the eggs as people were hiding them," Adam McGrubby '10 explained. "Starting at the Co-Op, I swept across campus with a large bag and an even larger hunger for cheap chocolate and starbursts. Afterwards I took a quick nap and found myself in Wonderland! Alice got soooo big!"

A few students made the mistake of taking a stroll outside.

"I saw Angelina Jolie walking by in a tour group, so I stripped off my clothes, walked up to her, and introduced my tongue to her tonsils," Justin Follywob '12 shared while petting his coffee and calling it 'Molly.' "That candy was good. Anyone got anymore? I'd love to mix that with some Jack Daniels and a Beatles CD."

The Administration has concluded that contaminated chocolate found its way into the eggs and promises to look further into the debacle. Meanwhile, Luke Schtupentomf'09, who helped stuff the eggs, offers his own explanation.

"I plead the fifth on all counts. But I will tell you this: LSD in the eggs was genius. I saw a squirrel chew through a plastic egg to eat the chocolate. An hour later I saw the same furry creature doing the YMCA down Martin's Way."

[SPAM 83.4%] SENIOR ART SHOW IN GALLERY TODAY
Free Booze and Crackers!

THE DUEL OBSERVER

ASHLEY ANN STAGNER

Editor-in-Chief/Sarah Connor

JAKE CHRISTOPHER ZAPPALA

Managing Editor/Skynet

ALICIA TAYLOR SPECHT

Layout Editor/John Connor

WILLIAM PAGE LEUBSDORF

Editor-in-Exile/The Terminator

BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN

The Boss

Staff Writers

AMR ROUVAN MAHMUD

ANDREW LEE ROBINSON

REBEKAH ANN MINTZER

BRITTANY DAWN TOMKIN

LESLEY ELIZABETH RYDER

SHELLEY ANNE SAUERHAFT

ALEXANDRA JULIA BOROWITZ

SAMUEL JULIAN WEISENTHAL

THOMAS HUNTINGTON VICTOR YARNELL

FINE PRINT: The Duel Observer is a publication of the Hamilton College Media Board, and is published every Friday. The facts and opinions expressed in this publication are not necessarily true or indicative of staff opinions. Any resemblance to persons, organizations, or institutions real or imagined, is purely coincidental.

Comments? E-mail duel@hamilton.edu
Complaints? Or find us on the interweb!
Recipes? <http://students.hamilton.edu/duel/>

ALUMNI PROTEST WOMEN ON THE HILL'S 40TH ANNIVERSARY

Women maintain that they have "rights"

By Ms. Borowitz '11, Ms. Stagner '09, Ms. Specht '11

MAKE ME A SANDWICH DEPT. (HAMILTON COLLEGE) With alumni weekend coinciding with the 40th anniversary of Hamilton and Kirkland's union, Hamilton's male alumni have come to protest the unnecessary addition of women on campus.

"My college experience was marvelous. Unfortunately my son won't be able to enjoy the same male on male privileges that I had," Franklin Porter '65, P'10 said. "He told me of a harrowing incident the other night in which he and his girlfriend were studying when she suddenly proceeded to perform oral sex on him."

Porter added, "Luckily he told me that he didn't like it and that later he went to see the new Jonas Brothers movie with his best friend Will."

Henry Rogue '53 has recently begun a campaign to rid Hamilton of its female students, called NHD—No Hysteria or Distractions. Many alums have joined the cause.

"Female students have been the root of all my son's woes," Cornelius VonLudenstein IV '71 said. "Because he has had so many one-nighters with underclassmen girls, he can no longer leave his dorm for fear of their retaliation with nerf guns."

Aware that they will be unable to rid the campus of estrogen, NHD created the Myn's Center to prevent the feminization of their sons.

"After I joined the Myn's Center I feel a lot more manly," Jake Laquel '12 said. "At our last meeting we watched football and made a new Chuck Norris worshipping alter."

NHD and the rest of the alumni believe they made a step in the right direction.

"These strapping young men were beginning to show signs of femininity; like compassion and sensitivity," VonLudenstein stated. "Luckily through eating dozens of hot wings and watching 69 straight hours of porn, we're helping them to continue manly lives."

Continued from "That explains my registration time," pg. 1 over again, I will," Jared Bellamy '09 said. "I'll just have to treat each day like Class & Charter Day and hope Hamilton will pay the hospital bills."

The Administration, who have moved to an undisclosed location in case of nuclear holocaust, sent a taped message to the students.

"Whatever you do, don't incur the wrath of WebAdvisor by trying to take five courses," Spokesperson John Nitterman warned. "Unless of course one of those courses is Machine Ass Kicking 312W with Will Smith."

Continued from "Survivor: Senior Thesis Edition," pg. 1 dragged him into the Glen, chanting some sort of druidic victory song the whole time. It was a little bit weird."

Branderson's professors remain unfazed. "This is the sort of behavior you expect from truly dedicated students like Branderson," Sociology Professor Jualez explained. "I'm not surprised he's trying to truly experience his topic. Besides, everyone hits a rough patch when they're not sure if they can get their thesis finished on time. I'm sure he'll get it done."

When told that Branderson still had forty pages to write and had not completed researching his topic, Professor Jualez altered his opinion slightly.

"Well damn. That kid's fucked."

MARTIN'S WAY REDECORATED
Inspired by T. S. Eliot's The Waste Land