STUDENT LEARNS ROSH HASHANAH MEANS “HEAD OF THE YEAR”

Disappointed he does not get head

By Mr. Komissar '22

CULTURAL IGNORANCE DEPT.

(CHAPEL) Christian Smith '23 learned from his roommate this week that the upcoming holiday Rosh Hashanah literally translates to “Head of the Year,” a reference to the beginning of the Jewish New Year. Smith, however, did not make the connection, and instead assumed it meant all Jews gave and received head in a sort of celebration.

“I can’t believe Jews have a holiday dedicated to reciprocal oral sex! I can’t wait to get the best head of my year,” Smith said when he first made the assumption.

“I can’t believe my roommate is so fucking ignorant!” David Miller '23, Smith’s roommate, who isn’t Jewish, but just happened to learn this fact in his Introductory Hebrew class, said when he heard what Smith thought.

PARENTS WEEKEND CONFUSING FOR FRESHMAN WHOSE DAD IS ON THE HOCKEY TEAM

“Hi, Heading To The Mail Center, I’m Dad!”

By Ms. Knapp '21

FAMILY PLANNING DEPT.

(SAGE RINK, RELUCTANTLY) For many students Fallcoming Weekend means showing mom and dad around campus for a few days. For first year student Laura Keller '23, parents weekend is both perplexing and shockingly unremarkable, since her father is a fellow Continental and member of Hamilton’s Division 3 hockey team.

“I mean, how is this going to work? Like do I have to eat with the team in Commons? I guess we could, like, sit next to each other in Intro Photo,” Keller wondered.

Keller reports that she already sees her dad fairly frequently, as she often picks up his cholesterol medication at CVS in exchange for the occasional handle of Pink Lemonade Smirnoff, and therefore doesn’t really see the need for an entire weekend of bonding.

As the holiday approached and Smith became more excited, Miller decided to break the news to Smith and tell him the real meaning of the holiday. Spectators of the exchange noticed an immediate change in Smith’s appearance as his posture fell apart and he burst into tears, letting his new yarmulke fall to the ground.

“You mean I got circumcised for nothing?” Smith asked, having started the conversion to Judaism in preparation for the holiday. “I wanted the best head of the year so badly!” Smith’s friends noted that any head would have been the best head Smith got that year.

Chabad, upon hearing the news, sent a spokesperson to campus, who said in a statement to the community, “We aim to prevent this kind of confusion by bringing cultural awareness to the Hamilton community. We are a little confused about how Christian came to think we have a holiday about oral sex, but we can make a learning opportunity out of his ignorance and stupidity.”

Laura’s father, Marcus “Scooter” Keller '20, spent over a decade playing in the juniors as well as in local leagues trying to make it big before finally settling down for a D3 career at Hamilton. He shared a similar uncertainty regarding the weekend. “This is way harder than bring-your-kid-to-practice day back on the Orlando Solar Bears. Did I mention I almost went pro?” he said, running his hands through what was likely considered flow before he began balding several years back.

When asked if she would consider attending a party with her old man, Keller gave a resounding no, “not after seeing him make out with that Gamma girl at Jungle Juice last weekend. She’s my sociology TA and she won’t stop asking me to call her Mom.”

“I’ll let him help me with my econ homework, that feels like bonding right?” Keller decided hesitantly. “He also forgot to pay me my allowance this month, so maybe this will jog his memory.”

At press time, sources confirmed that all plans went out the window when Keller found out that Nana and Pop Pop were also planning on coming down from Maine for the weekend to do Scooter’s laundry.

SEX IN THE DARK A HUGE FUCKING LETDOWN

But not for the reason you’re thinking

By Mr. Steele '23

WHOSE HAND IS THAT? DEPT.

(FILLMYASS EVENTS BARN) In these past few years Hamilton College has made great strides in terms of pretending to care about its student body’s sexual health and safety. However, some students still call into question whether or not the school has their best interests at heart. This controversy, which arose following the administration’s bold decision to replace all feminine hygiene product dispensers with a guy who just tapes a tampon to the bathroom door every two weeks, was aggravated last week when disaster struck at the school’s latest attempt to promote sexual education, the Sex in the Dark seminar.

Upon arrival, multiple students expecting a light-hearted evening of glow sticks and empowering discussions were horrified to discover that the session was actually a ball-slapping orgy in the moist darkness of Sadove basement. What many had suggested in jest became a horrifying reality for multiple Hamilton students who had to sit on the sweat-slicked linoleum floor and listen to a cacophony of moans, slaps, and Lou Bega’s “Mambo Number 5”, whilst various bodily fluids whizzed overhead.

Kyle Granger '22 was quoted saying, “We live on a placid island of ignorance in the midst of black seas of infinity, and it was not meant that we should voyage so far,” while staring blankly ahead. Another student simply stated, “I think I heard my dad’s voice in there,” before bursting into tears.

In all, it seems that Sex in the Dark was a tragic incident that one must believe the administration will see as a learning experience so as to prevent such a monstrosity from ever being born again. For now, we can only hope that The Female Orgasm will at least have free Opus or something.

Friday Five: Underground Fighting Rings

By Mr. Golden '20

Are classes and drama getting you down? Are your veins bulging with untapped aggression and blood lust? Fear not! Here are the five best underground fighting rings on campus to release your pent up stress and aggression!

5. Pokémon Ring. You think you have what it takes to be the very best? YEAH RIGHT. My beloved stinky rat boy Pikachu can kick your ass so hard you won't be able to sit for at least three hours afterwards. This entry level ring fucks just as hard as the rest, sparing no expenses and no survivors. (See, "PETA Shuts Down Pokemon Ring," pg. 5)

4. Bakugan Ring. These little balls of testosterone get me so goddamn hot and bothered, the only thing that makes me harder is watching them beat the shit out of each other. This close knit group of Battle Brawlers will welcome you with open arms, provided that you are bicurious and STD tested.

3. Beyblade Ring. This selective fighting ring is made up exclusively of frustrated Chabad and Hillel members. Ring leader and spokesperson Dave Goldstein '20 proclaimed, "We are just so tired of our peaceful ways! We need release! Also they remind us of dreidels, I guess."

2. Yu-Gi-Oh! Ring. This elite group of fighters has skyrocketed to the top of the list after their lead duelist John "Pegasus" Markus '22 sent legendary dueler Terry Martinez herself to an early retirement in the Shadow Realm. His only comment as he tried to protect his gelled hair from a horde of adoring KSA girls, "She was so distracted by the juice box I disguised as a beer with a sticky note that she didn't even notice my Trap Card."

1. Digimon Ring. If you're a goddamn virgin you better keep your lotion-bloated fingers out of this Olympic level fighting ring. Ever wonder how the McEwen Impossible Burgers taste so real? I've heard through the grapevine the victims of this ring are ground up and processed with a blend of delicious herbs and spices to create your tasty "vegan" meat patties. If you value your life DO. NOT. INTERACT.
