Draw With The Duel!

You know that thing where animators and artists can’t seem to draw women unless they have tiny waists and huge boobs? For Women’s History Month, we at The Duel decided to test our own skills at accurately representing the female body. Here are our top drawings!

(You can see why we chose to be writers instead of artists.)

Feminist Four: Top MEN

By Mr. Piazza '24

In honor of WoMEN's History Month, The Duel thought it would be most appropriate to have a MAN (me) list some of our (my) favorite MEN. We all know that without woMEN, MEN wouldn't exist! Go WoMEN!

4. That Guy. We all know him! That Guy! Everyone's favorite bystander who's defined by his gender and their relative presence to someone's finger pointing at him. I bet he'd do great things with his fingers (to me of course; we all know women hate sex).

3. LeBron.

2. David WippMAN. It's right in his name! We all know he's the peak MAN, no, not just the peak MAN, peak huMAN. He represents complete physical perfection of this earth. He has the body of Hugh JackMAN, and the brain of Albert Einstein (although not the hair). No one is more deserving of a place on this list than him. God, do I love that MAN with all my heart.

1. Me (Me). As campus's favorite cisgender straight MAN, I'd like to thank everyone who nominated me for this award (just me and my mom). See, I respect woMEN so much that I made a list of top MEN because everyone knows you can't rank woMEN. Because they're all so amazing that it's pointless to even compare them: they'd all get first place. The only way I could be better is if I was a woMAN.

Silly Six: Six Dumb Sticky Notes My Wife Leaves in My Lunchbox

By Mr. Weremchuk '24

Everyday when I go to work, I bring my lunch box. I need to have my lunch, after all. And every day when I open my lunch box at lunch time, the first thing that I see is a bright yellow sticky note with yet another message from my wife. In honor of Women's History Month I am including six of the most dumbest notes my wife has given me because can you believe someone would interrupt my lunch like that?

6. "Hey honey, I packed a PB&J and some cute baby carrots for you! Have a great day at work :)." What the fuck? Why is she always on my case? Doesn't she know I can pack my own damn lunch? Jesus, woman.

5. "Hey honey, I cut your grilled cheese into hearts just so you know that I love you :)." Are you fucking kidding me? So, what? I get less grilled cheese? It's like this woman is trying to starve me, for Christ's sake.

4. "Hey honey, I tried something new today! I hope you enjoy the special surprise I made for you for dessert!" Now she won't even tell me what she's feeding me? It's like she thinks that I'm stupid and will just eat anything. Like I'm stupid, or something.

3. "Hey honey, I made sure to pack you an extra granola bar today bc I know how much you love them, and how much I love you!" She wants to fatten me up. Fatten me up like a pig. Like a fat pig that will end up on the spit. It's like, why can't I ever just get some peace and quiet. I go to work, and I open up my lunch box, and, lo and behold, my wife is gab-gab-gabbing away at me through my lunch box. I just want to eat my lunch, for Christ's sake.

2. "Hey honey, Christmas time is coming up! I'm going to pack you some chocolates each day, like your own little advent calendar! Enjoy! :)." Does this broad think I'm fucking stupid? Like I don't know Christmas time is coming up. I mean, come on. Who doesn't know that Christmas time is coming up. You look at the calendar and it's right there in bold letters: Christmas. You can't fucking miss it! Of course I know that shit. She's always doing this shit, being condescending to me through my lunch box. It's like, what'd I ever do to deserve this shit! I'm just trying to enjoy a nice lunch with my lunch box at work!

1. "Hey honey, happy anniversary! 20 years! Can you believe that? My parents never thought we'd make it this far, but we sure showed them! I love you so much and I know you love me too, dear :)." Can this bitch stop putting words in my mouth? When did I say that? When have I ever said that shit? I mean, certainly not after this fucking disaster of a lunch. She can't even fucking toast some fucking bread correctly, and she tries to do all this lovey-dovey talk to me? Come on. Get real. I can see through this little facade, you've got going, "dear." Eat shit.

Friday Five: Reasons to Keep Wearing a Mask

By Mr. Lum '22

Just because we don't have to wear masks anymore doesn't mean we shouldn't. I think it's kind of a good idea to keep them on. And no, I'm not a fine sheeple specimen loaned out to society by the U.S. Government. I know COVID isn't real. People have been wearing masks for all the wrong reasons. Here are the right reasons.

5. It Will Muffle the Screams. If someone screams out in anguish but no one's able to hear it, are they really even suffering? Use a mask for yourself, or gift one to an acquaintance in need of silencing. This probably doesn't work, actually, but my suitemates and I are desperate. We tried sliding a mask under the closet door, but no improvement yet. Who is this guy? None of us can sleep.

4. Facial Expressions. I stopped making them once we started wearing masks; it just wasn't worth the effort. If you have even a tenth of my machine-like efficiency, I'm sure you did too. Now when you laugh you're like "hahahahahalolol" and you're rofl but you just have a completely straight face and there's nothing you can do about it. People think you're psycho. Not so sane in the brain. You've been labeled a deviant. No one trusts you.

3. Spiders. Yes, I said it. Spiders. Every year eight spiders crawl into your mouth while you're asleep. Now just imagine how many crawl in there while you're awake. Not everyone's destined to be Peter Parker. Fuck your "how else can I accidentally get enough protein in my diet" bullshit. Eat one more spider and you will die.

2. You Ugly. Very unhandsome/unbeautiful. "I don't have to wear a mask anymore," you think to yourself. "This is great, but why do children cry and mirrors shatter everywhere I go?" So sorry luv...someone had to tell you, and it wasn't going to be your mother. Because she doesn't talk to you. Because you're so hideous. Embarrassing. Ow! My eyes. Oof. Make it stop.

1. To Prevent Your Tongue From Dragging On the Ground. So...you have a face that not even a mother could love. At least your tongue isn't 5'4" and barely fits into your mouth even when you pack it in there like you're shoving a sleeping bag into the always-too-small sleeping bag bag. Oh, your tongue is exactly like that? You sneeze and knock someone out with your lengthy licker? From across the classroom? Well congrats. Keep that mask on and you can finally yawn without tasting the salty, snow-covered bricks of Martin's Way.
