McEWEN OPENS PUSSY BAR IN LIEU OF GLOBAL FOOD

Vegan options still slabs of tofu

By Mr. Wilson '23

BONE APPLE TITTY DEPT.

(IN AN UNREASONABLY LONG LINE)

With their contract up at the end of this year and their backs against the wall, Bon Appetit has elected to substitute the Global Street Food section with the Pussy Bar. Students assemble for themselves some combination of pussy and related accouterments, such as the slap dance that Ice Spice does, lube, Kitty Kat pills, and off-brand sriracha.

Reviews have been mixed, with some students finding the new option exciting and fresh, and some finding it unappetizing and musty. Mike Oxsardt '23 found the new option “lacking in nutritional value,” while Ita Boxer '24 said “mm-mmghf mhghghmmm slslslslslslsls,” mouth still full of pussy from the Pussy Bar. After she was finished, Boxer continued: “I love the new addition. I’m a tour guide and now I show everybody the new station, as well as the new ice cream counter that they put in to punish short people and the socially awkward.”

McEwen worker Baron Goshave only laments how hard it is to clean up. “These kids are just slonking this pussy so stupid style that I can’t keep up with them,” the 47-year-old father of two exclaimed. He also took issue with the lack of respect that the Bar has elicited from the students. “It’s like they don’t care about the craft anymore; the journey is half the fun,” he said, shaking his head sagely amongst the cacophony of head-giving.

The Pussy Bar also responds to complaints from students about the lack of support from the school for mental health. Recently, David Wippman coauthored an article with Andrea Riseborough on the massive implications that eating pussy has on the human psyche entitled “Munchin’ for Munchausen’s: Finding The Clitoris of The Mind.” He and legit Oscar® nominee Riseborough’s research findings conclude that “therapy is overrated, and it’s often much better just to go down on a person with a vagina for an hour or so. Not sure about how it counts as food, tho.”

PROFESSORS’ SHITS GET LOUDER

Adjacent stall now most dangerous place to be

By Mr. Hinkle '26

AWKWARD SIMLUNTANEOUS HANDWASHING DEPT. (CAMPUS SAFETY OFFICE) Students report that Hamilton professors’ shits have become nearly three times as loud in the last week. Reportedly, they have reached up to 134 decibels in some buildings, the loudest having been recorded in KTSA.

“Bleghhhhhh!” several students exclaimed as they vomited their way out of the Science Center Atrium bathroom after the first reported incident on Monday. Gus Povair '24 claimed, “I couldn’t hear a thing for a while,” as he caught a breath of gray, frozen air on the Science Center Patio. Povair, as well as eight other Hamilton students, are currently on day five of waiting for a ride from Campus Safety to the Clinton Urgent Care Center (CUCC). Secretary of Campus Safety, Amonda Fonne, reported that she will “send an officer shortly, so fucking relax.”

Head of the English Department, Dr. Hugh Jassman, responded to complaints in a statement Wednesday, declaring that “faculty are just blowing their load following their increased use of campus dining facilities.” Sophomore Max Volum, refuted these claims, asserting that “students use them every day. Who the fuck are they to complain? I shouldn’t have to suffer these earthquakes.” Joey Johnson '23 contends, “We shouldn’t have look them in the eyes while washing our hands after their mongo dumps.”

Meanwhile, Head of Campus Safety, Harry Dickson, explained, “we are doing everything we can to mitigate the problem and will be offering complimentary earplugs for use in campus bathrooms. They will be ready as soon as an officer takes those students to the CUCC.” Estimates indicate that they may complete this by the beginning of the fall semester. The earplugs will reportedly be able to withstand noise up to 40 decibels and be located outside every bathroom except the one that you need to use.

Students have taken matters into their own hands, forming the Student Bathroom Alliance (SBA). This effort is being led by classmates of those affected by the Monday incident, and is receiving guidance from the Student Assembly and the tour guides’ union. According to John, SBA’s head of external relations, “we hope to have separate bathrooms installed just for faculty use, but definitely not for fucking in.”

OBITUARY: SIR DAILY BEANS

Sir Daily Beans, 87, of Clinton, NY, was pronounced dead at 4:37 AM on the 1st of February, 2023. He died of a tragic gas leak in his Clinton, NY home. Sir Beans was a staple for every lunch and dinner in the Hamilton College dining halls, awarding him lots of praise, fans, friends, and foes. Before taking up full residency in upstate New York, Sir Beans was a soldier in the Yugoslavian army during World War II. He then moved to Mexico City where he truly found himself and learned how to be the best bean he could be. He began his tenure in 1978 at Hamilton College where, as his name prophesied, he would be the “daily beans” served in every dining hall on campus.

During his forty-five year long tenure at Hamilton College, Sir Beans met tens of thousands of students; served as a vital source of protein, fiber, and iron for vegetarians and meat eaters alike; and was always a friendly face for students to turn to. Unfortunately, his time with us was cut short. He was found dead in his home with a lethal amount of methane in his system. This could have been caused by his bowel movements and digestion, but Campus Safety has ruled it as an intentional gas leak. There is not too much information available as of now about the case, but there are rumors swarming in the community that it could have been orchestrated by Bon Appetit.

He is succeeded by his bereaved wife, Daily Pasta, and his two children Cheese Pizza and Daily Rice. The funeral will be held on February 4th in the chapel, and he will be buried in the College Cemetery thereafter. The investigation into the suspicious conditions of his death are ongoing, and Campus Safety asks that if you have any information regarding the case to contact them. During this time of immense sadness and loss, the Counseling Center will be offering students gogurts and a pat on the back from 1:00-3:00 PM.

Dear Hamilton Community,

This rush season, it has come to the attention of Greek life that some of our practices have been drawing criticism from some members of Hamilton's uggo community. We, the brothers and sisters (and nonbinary sisters!) of Hamilton Greek life feel it is important to address some of the divisive hate we have been getting.

Firstly, we recognize that historically Greek Life has been a structural institution. We are putting in so much hard work to do the hard work of self reflection, and are committed to working towards making changes to become a less structural institution.

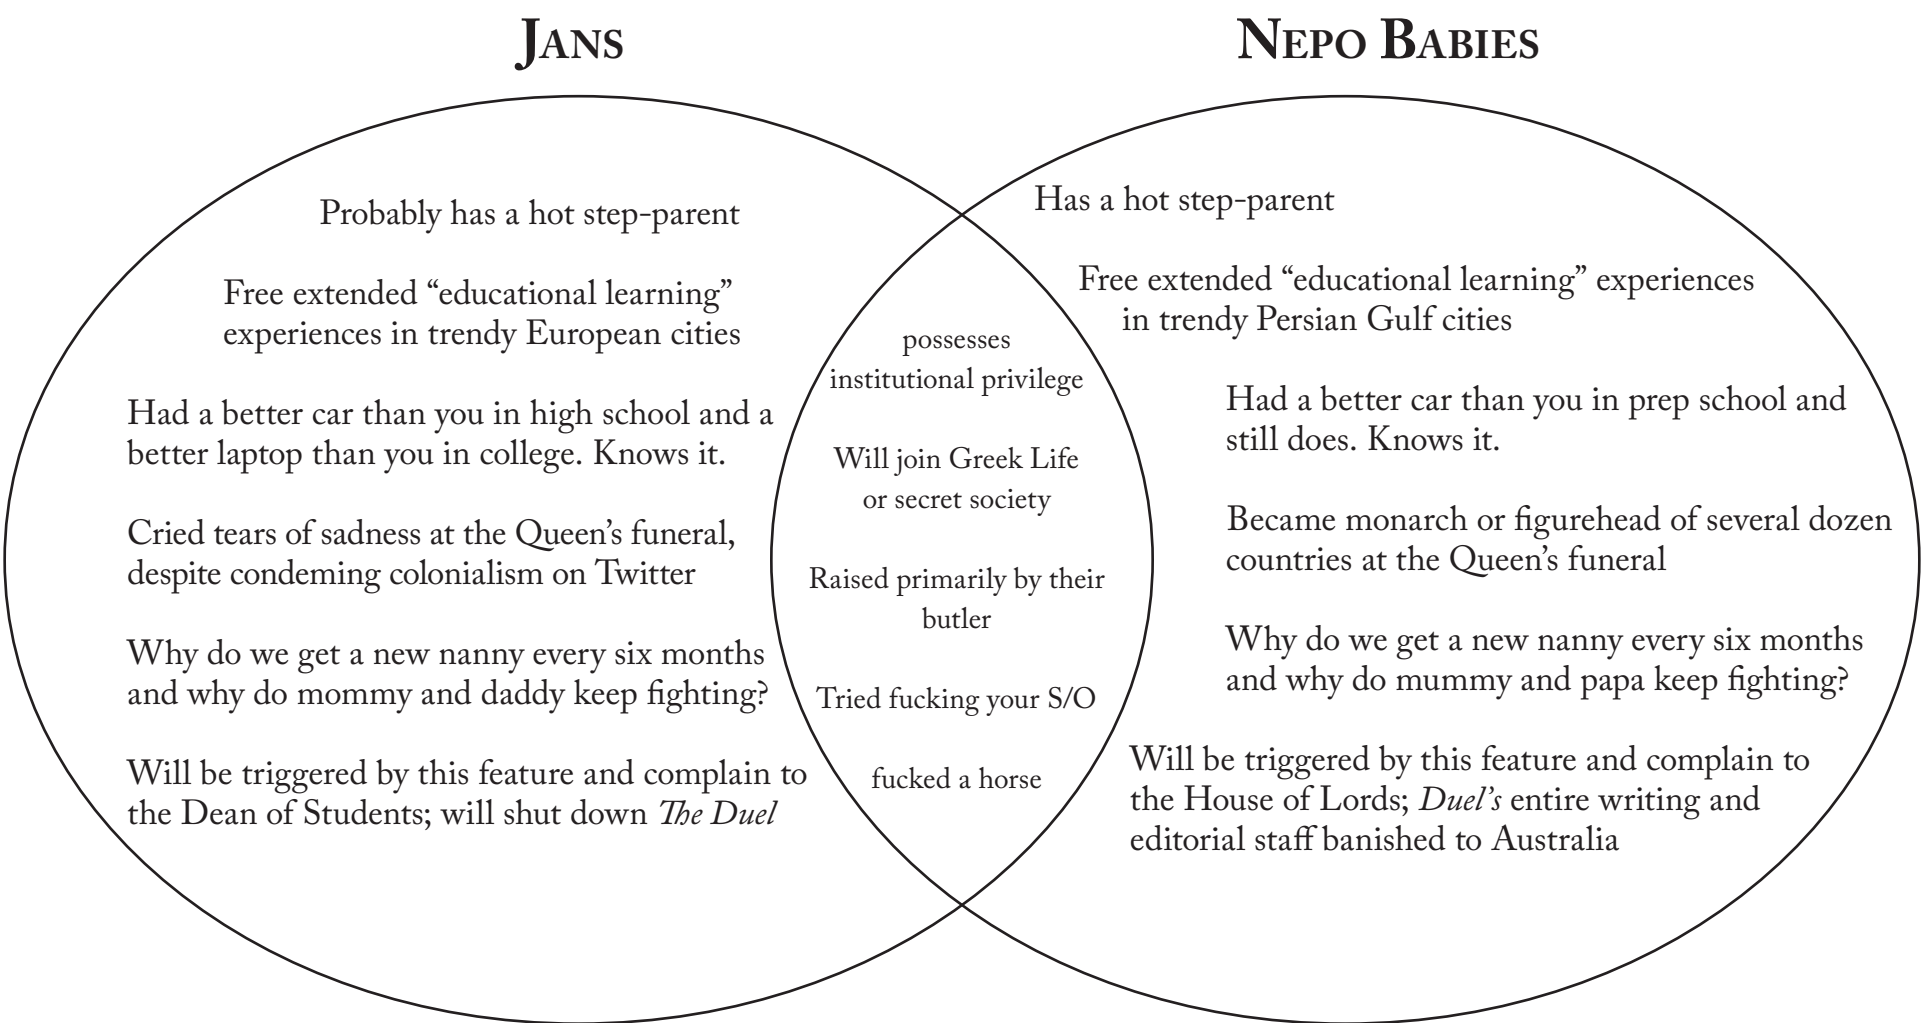

Secondly, we ARE committed to a diverse greek community. We have been home to several normal looking gay people throughout our collective histories, and are proud to have raised nearly hundreds of dollars for women in Ghana (the capital city of Africa!)

Finally, for our “economically diverse” pledges, we are instituting financial aid, so that everyone can uber at least one way to 12 North! (Please still keep track of your shots at the pregame, however, as we will be collecting Venmo information)

In conclusion, we may be a structural institution, but it fucking rocks! Please fill out this form to be considered for pledging! We promise, no more hazing, unless it's really funny.

THE JAN/NEPO BABY VENN DIAGRAM

A Cultural Analysis By Mr. Chivily '23

Jans: love them or hate them, these freshmen studied abroad two years and have a better Instagram than you. We at The Duel Observer couldn't help but notice the similarities between Jans and Nepo Babies, whose illustrious ranks include the faithful King Charles III and the dashing Colin Hanks. So, we naturally made a Venn Diagram to compare both groups. Enjoy.
